INDEPENDENT.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE completes its 43d volume with the November number. The entire series must be a compendium of literary contributions of such richness and quality as every intelligent person might feel proud in being the possessor—and there are many such, for it has been the public's favorite all the way through. Age seems to enhance its value, and the last number maintains its high position. Harper's Monthly is so universally and favorably known that we may say every lover of literature knows much more about it than we can express.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL, having reached its 53d volume, has for more than a quarter of a century been regarded by many in our own and other countries as the leading medium through which the advanced advocates of mental science have promulgated their common sense views; and it has aided more than any other dispense of ideas to enlighten the multitudes concerning the mysterious means through which the human mind is constantly manifesting itself. For this reason it is highly appreciated by the hosts of advancing minds everywhere. The last number is equal in importance to any of its predecessors. S. R. Wells, New-York, publisher and proprietor.

THE SCHOOLDAY VISITOR for October proposes in addition to the monthly visits of this favorite of the army of juveniles to give a new and beautiful picture, Manu's Birth Day, a fine and expressive steel engraving, 21 by 27 inches, for $1.50, which pays for both. These energetic young men are ever getting up something attractive and useful for their patrons, which helps to account for their signal success. And their supporters like them all the better for their energy. J. W. Daughaday & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

MERRY'S MUSEUM is as instructive and entertaining as ever, and there is a real and good sense about it that commands it to every family which desires nothing that does not contribute to the best culture. $1.50 a year. H. B. Fuller, Boston, publisher.

THE SCHOOLDAY VISITOR, J. H. Allen, Boston, is as well filled this month as ever with essays, good stories, declamations, illustrations, &c., as ever. $1.50 a year.

HOME AND HEALTH W. R. DePuy & Bro., N. Y., teaches the reader in all that pertains to good health—everybody has an interest in it. $1.50 a year.

THE NURSERY, the handsome monthly for the youngest readers fills its place well with such matter as is adapted to their wants. J. L. Shorey, Boston—$1.50 a year.

REPLY TO THE INFIDEL ATTACK OF THE INDEPENDENT ON CHRISTIANITY.

The second objection to our revelation and the doctrines therein contained is their mysterious character, and their incomprehensibility by the faculties of sensual reasoning.

In speaking of the holy trinity our opponent in Ait. 1 states: "This doctrine is full of difficulty, mystery and miracle." And again, "We see the effect of it around us every day in the deranged mixed up and muddy minds full of mystery and miracle on the subject of theology." And again Art. 1: "In the progress of investigation and discovery with the aid of science, and believing that our organs of sense do not deceive us much doctrines hard to understand and even unreasonable and full of mystery is cleared away."

These passages prove that he in the first place objects to all mysteries in revelation to be as such unreasonable and inconsistent with God, and secondly, that what could not be understood by sensual comprehension, must be cleared away and thrown overboard.

Let us see now whether these objections can bear the light of investigation better as the other. We meet him again on his own ground.

In regard to the objection against mystery, we refer him to his own God defined by himself of mind, matter and law as a unit and inseparable, and ask whether that is not a mystery? No more unreasonable and absurd. None could even have entered the mind of a man. He declares of man "who shall be robbed of divinity." Now where is your divinity Progress? did you see it, taste it, feel it, smell it? hear it?

If not your divinity in itself must be a mystery, and your having it is a mystery. And when Progress dies, what will become of your divinity, this is still another mystery. If the wise man, Progress believes in a mysterious God and claims to possess mysterious divinity, he must either throw them overboard as nonsense, or he is a fool in his objections to mystery and in his profession to clear them all away.

Or did Progress ever really comprehend mind, matter and law and their union? If so he knows more than all scientific men that ever lived. Read again those that we have produced in former articles. Upon this principle a man was forced to believe nothing at all, and also must he discard all ideas about God, all ideas of his own self, and of nature, the growth of plants, instincts of brutes, union of body and soul, properties of matter, wind, steam, electricity, magnetism and galvanism, the nature of spirit, his own wisdom, heart, mind, reason and senses, his origin and his end and a thousand other things, in which he lives and moves. On this argument Luther says in his works, Vol. XII, page 860: "And why do you venture to know and precisely comprehend this high incomprehensible divine nature, as you know nothing of your own body and life. You know not how it really happens, that your mouth laughs, that your eyes see a palace or a mountain ten miles off, that a man if he sleeps seems to be dead in the body and yet lives. We can not know the least thing of ourselves how it comes that a little hair grows on ourselves and yet we will climb in the devil's name without God's word and with our reason only into heaven to grasp and search God in his majesty, notwithstanding the blindness of our reason in its own affairs. If you will indeed use your reason and criticism, why do you not exercise it on yourself in such things with which you are daily associated, and ask where your senses remain when you are asleep, where your voice comes from, when you laugh &c." We see we can not get along without admission of innumerable mysteries in and around us, and Progress sees by this time, that he must either acknowledge them as never to be cleared up, or he must fly away from them. But where, to this is also a mystery. It is foolish nonsense to object to mystery in revelation and in matters pertaining to the majesty of God and his divine wisdom, when we even must acknowledge ourselves and the whole world to be full of them. On the contrary a revelation without mysteries would not be divine, and divine doctrines to be comprehended by a sensual mind, instead of a spiritual one, has not the characteristic of spiritual divine origin. Without mystery it is not Godlike. This reasoning is so self-evident that even the great philosopher Lessing gives it his testimony. He says in his works Vol. 24, page 20: "If a revelation can and must be, so must it be rather an evidence in favor of its truth to our reason, instead as an objection against it, if it finds things in it, that transcend our comprehension. Whoever has polished away such out of his religion, had just as well none, for what is a revelation, that reveals nothing? A certain captivity of reason under the obedience of faith is required by the very nature and idea of revelation, or rather reason voluntarily permits to be led captive. Her submission is nothing but the confession of her limits, so soon as she is convinced of the reality of revelation." And Robert Hall says reasonably: "A religion without its mysteries is like a temple without its God." This argument is strengthened also by the acknowledgments of the quoted scientific men in our previous articles of the insufficiency of human reason to understand the mysteries of nature. Now we ask any sane man is a mystery in itself unreasonable? If not, then the objection against the mysteries of revelation must fall to the ground, as very unreasonable. But it is not only unreasonable as we have seen that this objection was made but it is very low and malicious in the hidden writer to mock at such mysteries and style them fables without the least prove on his side. And when he calls such, that believe in such mysteries as trinity in carnation, redemption, revelation, muddy minds, he has slandered not only the ignorant so called Christians but also the very heroes of intelligence in the domain of the Christian church, and the different departments of human science and literature. Only that mind that believes in a God of matter and mud, becomes muddy, so he has to look for muddy minds only in the ranks and file of materialists. And as regards "mixed up minds" we refer him to his own production, where he in his ignorance sometimes mixes materialism and divine which are widely different in one part he speaks of mind, matter and law to constitute God, and in another of God as the boundless whole, whose body no where is and God the soul. And we should not wonder if this materialist is not sometimes a spiritualist, which are widely different also, by which he the clear headed enemy of mystery, seeks himself after mysterious manifestations. Progress, pardon me for disbelieving your consistency! As regards miracle we acknowledge ourselves guilty but we praise our God in them and only add, that materialism and all other kinds of infidelity cannot boast of such, for it transcends the power of their Gods. As we think the mystery question settled, we proceed to the question of comprehension. In regard to this we say: For I cannot see how any thing can be believed, that is incomprehensible and never to be understood. The first question is by what faculty will he comprehend?

One of her hymns—a favorite in many Christian families and congregations—we must quote not only for its own sake, but because there is a story connected with it that we wish to tell.

NEARER HOME.

One sweetly solemn thought Comes to me o'er and o'er, I'm nearer to my home to-day Than I ever have been before.

Nearer my Father's house, Where the many mansions be, Nearer the great white throne, Nearer the celestial sea:

Nearer the bound of life, Where we lay our burdens down, Nearer leaving the cross, Nearer gaining the crown.

But the waves of that silent sea Roll darkly before my sight, That darkly on the other side Break on a shore of light.

O, if my mortal feet, Have almost gained the brink, If it be I am nearer home, Even to-day than I think.

Father, perfect my trust, Let my spirit find in death That thy feet are firmly set On the rock of living faith.

A gentleman in China, entrusted with packages for a young man from his friends in the United States, learned that he would probably find him in a certain gambling house: He went thither, but not seeing the young man sat down in the hope that he might come in. The place was a bedlam of noises, men getting angry over their cards, and frequently coming to blows. Near him sat two men—one young, the other forty years of age. They were betting and drinking in a terrible way, the older one giving utterance continually to the foulest profanity. Two games had been finished, the young man losing each time. The third game, with fresh bottles of brandy, had just begun, and the young man sat lazily back in his chair while the older shuffled the cards. The man was a long time dealing the cards, and the young man looked carelessly about the room and began to hum a tune. He went on till at length he began to sing the hymn of Phoebe Cary above quoted. The words, says the writer, repeated in such a vile place made me shudder. A Sabbath school hymn in a gambling den! But while the young man sang the older stopped dealing the cards, stared at the singer a moment, and, throwing the cards on the floor, exclaimed:

"Harry, where did you learn that tune?"

"What tune?"

"Why, that one you've been singing."

The young man said he did not know what he had been singing, when the elder repeated the words, with tears in his eyes, and the young man said he had learned them in a Sunday school in America.

"Come," said the elder getting up, "Come, Harry, here is what I won from you; go and use it for some good purpose. As for me, as God sees me, I have played my last game, and drunk my last bottle. I have misled you, Harry, and I am sorry. Give me your hand, my boy, and say that, for old America's sake, if no other, you will quit this infernal business."

The gentleman who tells the story (originally published in the Boston Daily News) saw the two men leave the gambling house together and walk away arm in arm; and he remarks: "It must be a source of great joy to Miss Carey to know that her lines, which have comforted so many Christian hearts, have been the means of awakening in the hearts of two tempted and erring men, on the other side of the globe a resolution to lead a better life." It was a source of great joy to Miss Carey, as we happen to know. Before we tell a private letter from her to an aged friend in this city, with the printed story enclosed, and containing this commencement:

"I enclose the hymn and story for you, not because I am vain of notice, but because I thought you would feel a peculiar interest in them when you know the hymn was written eighteen years ago (1842) in your house. I composed it in the little back third story bed room on Sunday morning, after coming from church; and it makes me very happy to think that any word I could say has done a little good in the world."

We close this hasty sketch with mentioning the fact that the very last literary work of Miss Carey was the tender and affectionate sketch of her sister Alice, written for the Ladies Repository. It was a fitting close of her useful life, and though we may regret that she was not spared to write as she intended, a more complete biography, to accompany an edition of her sister's latest poems, we yet must bow to Divine will with the resignation so happily expressed in her words:

"I am what I am, and my life for me Is the best—or it would not be, I hold."

—N. Y. Tribune.

This is written for you, young man. Don't depend upon father's money or position, but make both for yourself. Dr. Franklin said a good kick out of doors is better than all the rich uncles in the world. A young man left to his own exertions, driven out to stem the tide of fortune, will rise to an eminence to which affluence and luxuriance can not elevate him.

THE DEEP SNOW.

The following graphic account of the "deep snow," an event so often referred to by the old residents of Illinois, is from an address delivered by President Sturtevant, of Illinois College, before a reunion of the old settlers of Morgan, Cass, and Scott counties, at Jacksonville, on the 10th of August:

"The constitution of your society defines an old settler. He is one who resided here before the great snow. The thought has occurred to me that it might be interesting to many in this audience to be informed what we mean by the deep snow. We shall have no difficulty in making ourselves understood on that subject. In the interval between Christmas, 1830, and New Year, 1831, of course forty years ago last New Year, snow fell over all central Illinois to the depth of fully three feet on a level. Then came a rain, with weather so cold that it froze as it fell, forming a crust of ice over this three feet of snow, nearly, if not quite, strong enough to bear a man, and finally, over this crust of ice, there was a few inches of very light snow. The clouds passed away and the wind came down on us from the northwest with extraordinary ferocity. For weeks, certainly for not less than two weeks the mercury in the thermometer tube was not, on any one morning, higher than twelve degrees below zero.

The wind was a steady, fierce gale from the northwest, day and night. The air was filled with flying snow which blinded the eyes and almost stopped the breath of any one who attempted to face it. No man could, for any considerable time, make his way on foot against it.

The story of such a winter as this may be pleasant enough to hear to, one who hopes never to experience it; but the situation of the inhabitants of this county was certainly rather alarming. The people were almost wholly from regions more southern than this, and knew nothing by experience of dealing with such a depth of snow and such cold. Indeed, I had then some experience of New England winters, and have had some since, but I have to this day never seen any other which bore any comparison to this. Jacksonville had then about 400 people. We were dependent chiefly for keeping warm on having plenty of wood, for our houses were certainly far enough from being warmly built, and yet our supply of fuel for the winter was not, as is more commonly the case, piled at our doors before the beginning of winter. It was in the forest and must be brought to us through that snow, and by people who were quite

LOCAL MATTERS.

Mrs. M. M. Brown, wife of the earnest, able and efficient workers in the cause of temperance will lecture on that subject next Sunday, at 3 o'clock, p. m. We are not yet certain as to where the lecture will take place, but it will be made known in due time. Mrs. B. always prepares a good lecture, meriting the attention of the public, and on this occasion all are invited to come and hear, as the speaker will have something well worth listening to, and advice that should be heeded by every one.

Mr. Fordyce Seeley, of this place, who has been unfortunately sick for four weeks, had the precaution to take a policy on the Cincinnati Health and Accident Insurance Company, of which Mr. L. S. Crooks is agent, received forty dollars. A mighty good thing—others may follow the example with safety.

Taylor Clay, who was also disabled with a felon on his thumb, has a policy from the same company, and he was favored with a compensation of twenty-five dollars for one week. The Chicago fire did not affect this company.

Complaining and scolding are bad habits, and should be avoided as far as possible, as the tendency is to irritate without compensating advantages—that is, as a general rule. But the quality of much of our paper of late has so degenerated into the miserable that it seems quite time to express a note of dissatisfaction, to say the least. As we pay cash promptly for paper, and a pretty good price at that, we are entitled to a good article—at least far better than we have of late been afflicted with. We shall try to effect an improvement.

Mr. Buckius was thrown out of his buggy one day last week near the railroad, as he was about to cross when a train was passing. Mr. B. fortunately escaped with injury to himself or the little girl with him.

A bummer was arrested by the marshal Saturday night, when drunk, on the street, and put in the calaboose. Sunday morning he was brought before the mayor and fined five dollars, but could not pay, so he was returned to the lock up. Does it pay to get drunk?

The new furniture rooms of Taylor Clay & Co. are finely embellished with a large new sign, which challenges the attention of every one passing that way.

Quite a number of our German citizens had a lively dance at McLain's Hall on last Thursday night.

Bro. Allen of the Steubenville Gazette, tells of a big potato raised by that vicinity which weighed three pounds and 11 oz. It would make a big dinner for Patrick McQuade.

Bro. C. F. Ricks, after an absence of four and a half months, on a visit to the place of his nativity in Germany, returned home safely and in excellent health, on last Thursday night. He is congratulated by his many friends, and welcomed by all. In a brief conversation with him he relates that the time was most pleasantly spent among his relatives and other acquaintances, and that since his leaving that country, a year forty years ago, there are many changes in every respect. In 1833 there was no country here, and the roads were not paved with iron messengers. The people with whom he mingled seemed prosperous and contented. They and are now near mighty rivers.

The exceedingly long drought here and elsewhere is drying up streams of water, and in many places wells are giving out. Some of the wells and springs here are dry. It is a critical condition of affairs it becomes to all to be exceedingly careful of fire. A small spark in these windy days may produce a terrible conflagration.

Some miscreant has destroyed the usefulness of the big pump at McLain & Dangler's store by putting a stone down the stock—so it is reported. As a chap needs a good sized bucket of water, and indigestibility ran down his gullet, for nothing less will he will touch him better manners. The proprietor, Mr. McLain, has about got tired of fixing that pump, and now we realize how useful it is when in order. These are the men who have used it daily for years could not do a better thing than to vote our means to make the needed repairs to it. The proprietor has done his share in that business—now let the folks who have used it do theirs. Let the big pump be alive to spray its abundance in the shape of living water, not decaying alcohol.

Saturday and Sunday were clear, warm days, but Monday and Tuesday were cloudy with slight rains—not enough to moisten the parched earth. But it certainly is coming and when the big rain arrives we shall have a wet time.

The following items of information are going the rounds of the papers: "The Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad does not turn a wheel or do any work on the Sabbath day. The Y. M. C. A. of one of both the cities have placed in every caboose, baggage, express and passenger car on that road a rack fastened in a conspicuous place on the inside of the car, labeled—Bible, and in the rack and in each rack is a Bible." That all reads very pretty, but who has seen those racks and Bibles? Cephas B. Lynn, a correspondent of the Banner of Light, says he made diligent search for the articles above named in several of the cars on that road, but found nothing of either. There is a severe reproach some where in print about making an ostentatious show of our religion—does this come under that head? Mr. Lynn, above referred to, says he heard pretty round cussing by some one of the employees on that road.

A marriage took place last Thursday evening at the St. John's Evangelical church, which created more than ordinary interest. The house was crowded with people. Rev. H. Korthauer officiated, performing the ceremony in the German language. It was the marriage of Mr. Louis G. Albrecht, of the firm of F. Albrecht & Son, merchants, and Miss Amelia E. Dietrich, daughter of Mr. Peter Dietrich, a merchant, and of this place.

Thos. Grosvenor, city prosecuting attorney for Chicago, while passing along the street, on the 20th inst., supposed to have been intoxicated, was shot dead by a police man for not answering a challenge. This is but another sacrifice to alcohol.

Hon. S. C. Bowman, of the firm of Bowman & the firm of Bowman & Malier, hardware merchants, west side of canal, Main street, has just gone east in order to purchase a large, varied, and extensive stock of hardware, and everything connected with their branch of trade. This firm has been quietly but very successfully moving along, and have secured a large and increasing patronage. None are more deserving, and a discerning public are not slow in appreciating such an establishment. Their business is prospering, and will continue to do so while under the supervision of such careful managers.

It is pleasant to once more see the cheerful face of the Advance which was printed at Chicago. For the present it is issued at New York, but as soon as possible it will return to the original city of its publication. The Little Corporal, too, although he had his coat singed, and suffered in the form, still his spirit survives, as we see by an extra received since the fire. His regular visits will not be stopped by the great calamity; the publisher, Mr. John E. Miller, gives notice that the paper will go on, as before, only improved as far as possible. Now is a good time to send for it—help these good people, as they lost everything connected with the office.

Mr. H. W. P. Lewis, of Chicago, publisher of the Western Rural, among the burned out, gives notice that his excellent and large agricultural paper will be recommenced at an early day. Here is a chance for our farmers to aid a worthy worker for them.

The Buckeye State is fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Frank Miller as editor in place of Mr. P. C. Young. Mr. M. has had experience in the profession and knows how to get up a good paper.

Seventy-five periodicals were destroyed by the great Chicago fire. Certainly the printers have suffered their share. We have seen no notice of particulars, but have strong suspicions that our friends, Mander, Schofield & Co., of the Chicago Type Foundry, were burned out. They could not possibly escape, located as they were in the burnt district. We hope they will soon revive their work, if they have been among the unfortunate.

Myers & Wilson, preparatory to an indefinite amount of work in their line, are having their steam engine overhauled and repaired, and will soon be ready for active work. Their establishment when in full blast is one of the wide awake places in Massillon.

Mechanics who build houses are doing a very fine job for Mr. C. N. Oberlin. Mr. Oberlin, the architect and contractor for the new city hall, has succeeded in making it one of the best buildings in town, and by the aid of the brickmakers, bricklayers, stone masons, painters, etc., Mr. Oberlin has a good prospect of owning the model dwelling in Massillon.

Judge Frouse's majority in this judicial district is said to be 1,067.

At many periods of time, and in numerous localities, the question of how many hours should constitute a day's work has often been discussed. Long years ago a laboring man had to work at least from sun rise to sun set, in the long days, and in the short days from daylight till dark, to perform a day's work. Then they took to counting the hours in manufacturing reducing them to ten—a great improvement for the tired workers. Efforts of late years have been to reduce the hours to eight, but not with much success, though in some places it is said to prevail. The latest move in that way has been made in the English states, and that is the suggestion that the laborers be paid by the hour, which seems to give good satisfaction. A man wants to work 12 hours a day he'll be paid accordingly, or if he'll 4 he'll be paid correspondingly wages.

An unfortunate runaway of a horse and buggy took place last Sunday. Three men were in the vehicle, and the impression is that they were all drunk. From some cause the rider who held the reins tumbled out, and before the others could stop the horse they were there thrown out roughly, the buggy somewhat smashed, and things in a bad fix. Perhaps the horse with his hard sense disliked having to be driven about on Sunday.

Stark county votes strong! In 1877 the population was 42,923, and at the last election 10,407 votes were given—about one vote to every four persons, and a fraction. Columbiana had a population in 1870 of 38,289, and the last election polled 6,960 votes—not quite one vote out of six population. The number of people in Stark is one fourth more than in Columbiana but the vote is one third more.

Yesterday's papers tell of a rather alarming fire raging in several places in the woods in the state of New York. No towns or cities are destroyed yet, but there is danger, and the loss of timber, and farm buildings has been considerable. Fires have also been destroying much in Kentucky and adjoining states. If rain don't come soon the danger will be great from the fire.

Mr. The. Foeke left at this office a fine looking car of corn, of the Sanford variety. Has one foot in length with eight rows, having about 460 ears. Mr. F. raised several acres and is well pleased with its yield and the quality of the corn.

Main st. made a brilliant appearance, as also did Erie and other streets last evening, for they were lit up with gas. It looked like long processions, as the fallers. We have been a long time in lighting of the streets several years, and it now is welcomed by our citizens. The old gas house is taken down, and men are at work preparing a new tank, when we shall have a full supply of this light making material.

LOST—On last Thursday week, 12th inst. a pillow sham, having a wreath with letter A in center. Corners worked in chain stitch and partly finished. A liberal reward will be given by leaving the same at P. G. Albright & Bro's store.

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERERS—The ladies of the Home Relief Society solicit from all contributions of money, clothing, new or cast off, or any article whatever, that will assist in relieving the terrible suffering caused by the recent fires in the northwest.

While the appeals from Chicago have met with such noble and unbounded response, let us remember that a more appalling disaster to human life, has fallen upon the inhabitants of the towns and villages in northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

Grateful to the many kind friends who have already contributed so liberally they will still thankfully receive any other donations from those who may consider it a pleasure to give.

The society will meet on Wednesday and Friday afternoons, Oct. 23rd and 27, at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, when all contributions will be received. All are earnestly invited to be present and assist in making and repairing articles to be sent.

AMERICAN WASHER!
PRICE, $5.50.

The American Washer saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Patience of Washing Day no longer dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing secured.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of its invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours practice, can thoroughly command and effectively use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting. It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and at a better price, than the labor is fully saved by its use, and the cloth is last one half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly. It is a labor saving machine, and a great help to the housewife. It is a perfect little wonder! The extent of the great Chicago conflagration naturally suggests the idea of comparison with the great fires of history. Below we give a list of the principal conflagrations of modern times, from which it is seen that the awful calamity of our sister city is equaled by but one—the great London fire of 1666. The New York conflagration of 1835 is the next in the amount of property destroyed, although that of the Constantinople fire of 1869 burned more buildings and rendered houseless more inhabitants.

Norfolk, Va., destroyed by fire and cannon balls by the British; property to the amount of $1,500,000 burned, Jan. 1, 1776.

City of New York, soon after passing into the hands of the British; 500 buildings consumed, Sept. 20, 21 1776.

Theater at Richmond, Va., when the governor of the state and a large number of the leading inhabitants perished Dec. 26, 1811.

Charleston, S. C., 1185 buildings covering 145 acres, April 27, 1838.

New York city, 46 buildings, loss $10,000,000, Sept. 26, 1839.

Pittsburgh, Penn., 1,000 buildings, loss about $6,000,000, April 10 1845.

Quebec, 1500 buildings, many lives and an immense amount of property lost May 28 1846. In less than a month afterwards, 1300 dwellings; in all, two thirds of the city destroyed; June 28 1845.

New York city, 302 stores and dwellings; $6,000,000 property lost July 19 1845.

St. John, Newfoundland; nearly the whole town destroyed; 6,000 people deprived of homes; June 12 1846.

Albany, N. Y. 600 buildings, besides steamboats; piers &c; 24 acres burned over; loss $3,000,000; Sept. 4 1848.

St. Louis, 15 blocks of houses and 23 steamboats; loss $3,000,000; May 17 1840.

Philadelphia, 350 buildings; loss $1,500,000; 25 persons killed, nine drowned and 120 wounded; July 9, 1850.

Nevada, Calaver 100 buildings destroyed; loss about $1,300,000; many lives lost; May 3-5, 1851.

City of Portland, Me., was nearly destroyed by fire, July 4, 1866: loss $15,000,000.

The great London fire of Sep. 1666 whose ruins covered 430 acres, destroyed 89 churches, including St. Paul's, the city gates, the Royal Exchange, the custom house, Guild Hall, St. John College, and many other public buildings, besides 13,200 houses—laying waste 400 streets. About 200,000 inhabitants were camped in Islington and High Gate fields.

Probably the most distressing and appalling conflagration of modern times, was that at Santiago, the capital of Chili, South America, on the night of December 8, 1863. About 7 o'clock in the evening, the feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary and the last day of a series of religious celebrations in the "Month of Mary," the church of the Campana, when brilliantly illuminated in a dangerous manner, was burned down. The fire began amid the combustible ornaments, and above 2,060 persons, principally women, perished, the means of escape being utterly insufficient. On the 29th the government ordered the church to be razed to the ground, and much public indignation was excited against the fanatical priesthood. —Toledo Commercial.

A notion seller was offering Yankee clocks, finely varnished and colored, and with a looking glass in front, to a certain lady not remarkable for personal beauty. "Why, it's beautiful," said the vender. "Beautiful, indeed! I look at it almost frightens me!" said the lady. "Then, marm," replied Jonathan, "I guess you'd better buy one that ain't got no glass!"

An experimental set of rail car wheels made of paper have worn out one steel tiring in New Jersey, and are still in running order. The peculiarity of railway paper is, that the longer it has to run the harder it becomes.

A woman being enjoined to try the effects of kindness on her husband, being told that it would heap coals of fire upon his head, replied, "I have tried boiling water, but it didn't do a bit of good."

A Scotch nobleman one day visited a lawyer at his office, in which, at the time, there was a blazing fire, which led him to exclaim: "Mr. —, your office is at hot as an oven!" So it should be, my lord," replied the lawyer, "it is here that I make my bread."

An Irishman, swearing before a magistrate against his three sons thus concluded his affidavit: "And this do I swear further saith, that the only one of his children who showed him any real filial affection was his youngest son Larry, for he never struck him when he was down."

Western whisky is now raised to proof with oil of vitriol, to accommodate the growing callousness of the Western palate. The difficulty experienced by the distillers is said to be that when the liquor is made sufficiently piquant for their customers' throats it burns all the staves out of the barrels.

During the delivery of Olive Logan's lecture on Girls, the other evening, the fair lecturer, in her confidential talk with pretty girls, said, "Shall I tell you how I feel? Well, I will tell you; I never saw a pretty girl in all my life, one upon whose cheeks the roses were blooming, but that I wanted to fold her in my arms and kiss her." A person of the male persuasion, who had not seen but twenty-five summers, thoughtful of the occasion, gave evidence of fellow feeling, in a loud voice exclaiming, "I feel just so, too!"

Massillon, O.

Dr. J. LONG,

Eclectic Physician,

Has located himself at Massillon, O., for the treatment of Female & Chronic Diseases.

Office east of the Park, second door of Mr. Falke's new building.

All consultations and examinations of patients made free of charge.

Dr. Long examines and explains your disease without asking any questions. If he understands your case you know it, and cannot be deceived. If he cannot tell your disease, and how you feel without asking questions he does not consider himself competent to treat your case. This is the criterion to go by, and patients should not be satisfied with any other. This is the only direct and positive evidence of my ability as a scientific physician, and by this standard I am willing to be judged.

A proper diagnosis of local disease, without constitutional symptoms, that is, not affecting the system generally, must depend upon the judgment of both patient and physician.

Give Dr. Long a call, and satisfy yourselves whether he understands your case sufficiently well to treat them successfully.

Dr. Long may be consulted in the German and English languages. Address letters, JAMES LONG, M.D., Massillon, Ohio.

Manhood: how Lost, how Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S Celebrated Essay on the radical cure, without medicine, of Spermatorrhea, or Seminal weakness, involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Price in a sealed envelope only six cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid on receipt of six cents of two post stamps.
